Things that bug me

I may get around to doing something about it one day. Or someone else might get there first. Then again, I might just live with it.

I hate them. Firstly the text could do with changing, but I am reluctant to do this (except on my own sites) because of language file implications. Secondly ticketlib was an excellent quick fix but could do with more intelligence - in particular it only allows one ticket to be open at a time for each user, and discards that ticket if it is not used on the next request which doesn't suit the way most people work. The most obvious improvement would be some kind of a confirmation form - dumping all the users input is just rude!
