

I've been a software engineer for more than two decades, and have done web software development (using php and mysql) for about three years. I get paid to do software engineering, but I do web software development for fun and fulfillment. That's why I joined the ))TikiWiki(( Team (for fun and fulfillment, not money).

I have administrated two ))TikiWiki-based(( websites: one of them was on a private corporate intranet (but I no longer work at that company and, of course, no longer administrate that website), the other is my family website, which you are welcome to visit. I also administrate a website for a Native American group (the Algonquian Confederacy of the Quinnipiac Tribal Council).
