

UserPagerenier

Hi, I am a chemical engineer living in South Africa with a keen interest in the open source community. I have decided to use tikiwiki to start a web community where South Africans interested in starting small businesses can share ideas, advertise and get involved in collaborative efforts to support job creation while also improving their own economic prospects. I have been able to get the software running on my server and just need to get it customized. Later on I will expand the forum to include the other major native languages of South Africa should there be an interest.